Oregon eats cost of caring for local boy

Boy seized in 2008 while visiting stepfather ◗ Oregon had sought $7,500, the cost of keeping boy while his mother fought to get him back through courts ◗ Mother believes her marijuana advocacy was held against her

Oregon has dropped its lawsuit against a Calgary mother who spent more than two years trying to wrest control of her son back from the state's foster system.

"I feel that I have been vindicated somewhat and I feel that the path has been made a little smoother for me to help my family get some closure and move forward and have a better life," Lisa Kirkman said outside Calgary provincial court.

Noah, Kirkman's son, was 10 when he was seized in 2008 during a summer spent in Oregon visiting his stepfather, who wasn't considered a legal guardian.

Oregon officials said they became concerned when they discovered he had social services files in Canada.

Kirkman explained that the files were open to enable Noah to access mental health programs for his special needs, which include a severe form of attention deficit hyperactivity disorder.

It took until June, however, for the courts to give up control of Noah. Even then, the judge in the case expressed reservations, saying he believed Kirkman had abandoned her son by leaving him with his stepfather. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Police release new details in murder case

Staff Sgt. Rick Tuza said Donny Tu was walking into his home at the time he was shot Tu's three children, all under the age of 18, and his wife were home at the time

KATIE TURNER
CALGARY@METRONEWS.CA

Police believe they have "solid persons of interest" in a six-month-old murder case, but are still seeking assistance from the public.

On May 3 around 1:30 a.m., police found Zhi Heng Xu, also known as Donny Tu, 41, dead at his home on Edgeridge Green NW.

Staff Sgt. Rick Tuza with the homicide unit said witness accounts led to more details about the incident.

"We're still exploring the motive," said Tuza.

"We do have people on interest in this investigation."

Tu's brother, believed to be a former gang member, was initially questioned; however, Tuza said gang relation has been ruled out.

Suspect

- The man believed to be involved is described as Asian or Arabic.
- He is thought to stand roughly five-foot-seven and weigh about 170 pounds
- Those with information can call police at 403-266-1234.

"There's nothing to suggest that Mr. Tu's brother or the associates were involved in this offence at this time."

Police are now releasing details of a man believed to be involved in the incident as well as a description of a vehicle seen in the area shortly after the shooting.

The car is described as a Japanese make, dark-coloured, four-door with possibly a loud muffler.

Five scammed on Kijiji

False advertisements scammed five Albertans last week on the popular Kijiji website, leaving one victim out $600, police said.

The fake advertisement copied a legitimate one for rental opportunities at a home in southeast Calgary, except the rental price was lowered, and contact information was altered.

The five people scammed complained to the Calgary police after inquiring about the Mount Aberdeen Grove SE property, and four discovered it was a scam before sending any money.

One did send a $600 security deposit to the scammer through a wire service. The Calgary police believe the scammer resides in New York, and is using the name David Rodriguez.

Soccer marathon to kick cancer to curb

CANDICE WARD/FOR METRO

▶ Mike Metcalfe prepares for the Mike Metcalfe 30 Hour Soccer Marathon for Cancer yesterday at Olympic Plaza. The money raised from the marathon is used to buy equipment for the Foothills Hospital.

All-ages co-ed event Organizer is now six years cancer-free

It all started as friends helping another friend with his battle with cancer.

Seven years later, the Mike Metcalfe 30 Hour Soccer Marathon for Cancer is helping thousands with their fight with the deadly disease. "One person being positively affected by the equipment we purchased is enough to continue doing this," said Mike Metcalfe.

In 2004, Metcalfe was diagnosed with Stage 3 testicular cancer and treatment had gone unsuccessfully.

Metcalfe's friends wanted to do something to support his fight and started the marathon. The first year, the marathon raised about $80,000. After his recovery, Metcalfe decided to continue the event and donate the funds raised to the Calgary Health Trust (CHT), which in turn purchases equipment for the Foothills Hospital.

"One hundred per cent of the funds raised goes to something material and tangible that will affect cancer patients right away," said Metcalfe.

Jaime Croft-Larsen, director of communications with the CHT, says the money raised through the marathon has been invaluable.

The marathon will be held at the Calgary Soccer Centre at 7000–48 St. SE. To participate, register at soccermarathon.org.

"We are seeing a constant increase in need for clients coming in and looking for assistance, so we are hoping to meet our target and meet many people's needs," Goodyear said.

Province makes headway against beetles

60,000

Square kilometres of Alberta forest that Sustainable Resources Development Minister Mel Knight says is threatened by the mountain pine beetle.

Aerial surveys suggest Alberta is making its first real gains against tree-killing mountain pine beetles since the serious infestation in the province began in 2006.

The province says new swarms of the bugs didn't fly into Alberta from B.C. as expected this summer. A cold winter also killed off lots of the beetles, and forestry crews have done of good job of removing infested timber.

Mel Knight, sustainable resources development minister, called the news encouraging but warned the long-term fight against the spread of the tiny destructive pests must continue. "Surveys confirm the number of new trees attacked by mountain pine beetle have declined from a year ago," Knight said yesterday. "We had some success this year but the battle is far from over.

Quebec poker champ eyeing more 'big scores'

23-year-old becomes first Canadian to win no-limit Texas Hold 'em event

Quebec poker professional Jonathan Duhamel might never have to work again.

Duhamel, 23, who won the World Series of Poker title and $8.94 million on Monday, becoming the first Canadian to take down the no-limit Texas Hold 'em main event in Las Vegas, called the win "surreal."

"I could never dream of that — It's so huge," Duhamel said after the win.

Recounting the game, he said, "I was aggressive on the final table, so I wanted to mix it up a little bit ... I limped a little bit just to try to confuse him and have a good balance in my game."

Now, Duhamel can think about a bigger future in poker. He hopes that money and prestige of being a champion will help take his young career even further.

"I'm going to be playing all those big tournaments and try to make other big scores," he said. "I'll be there next year in the World Series and try to do my best again."

He added he'd like to buy Canadiens season tickets — or perhaps drop a ceremonial first puck before a game. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Is Arctic a way in for terrorists?

CSIS, RCMP wary of terrorist threats from both inside and outside Canada operating via North: ITAC report

The chilling prospect of terrorists or other extremists exploiting the Canadian Arctic has attracted the watchful eye of federal security agencies.

A newly declassified intelligence report, prepared by the Integrated Threat Assessment Centre, raises the spectre of the North as a conduit for radicals.

16% The population of the Canadian Arctic has climbed 16 per cent over the last decade.

"In recent years, vessels with links to human smuggling, drug trafficking, and organized crime have attempted to access the Canadian Arctic," the report says.

The assessment also mentions that al-Qaida has identified Canada as a target, though any analysis of those threats in the northern context have been struck from the report.

The Dutch nose best

Scratch-and-sniff cards distributed by police in the Netherlands in effort to get civilians to identify and turn in illegal grow-ops

Here's a crime fighting idea not to be sniffed at: Dutch police have asked citizens to use their noses to help track down illicit cannabis plantations.

Police and municipalities in Rotterdam and The Hague this week mailed 30,000 scratch and sniff cards that give off the pungent odour of cannabis plants to help people identify the smell of a plantation.

"From now on, you'll be able to smell the possible danger of an illegal cannabis crop in your neighbourhood," the card says, advising citizens to call police if they think they have sniffed out a plantation. Possessing and using small amounts of cannabis is tolerated in the Netherlands, as is growing up to five plants for personal use.

Computer repair bill comes to ... $20M?

All Roger Davidson — a Grammy-winning composer and heir to a massive oil fortune — wanted was to get his computer fixed.

According to authorities in New York State, he ended up being scammed out of as much as $20 million US by the computer store's owner, Vickram Bedi.

Bedi, 36, spun a bizarre story for Davidson, 58, about a multinational plot to take over the U.S. government. Bedi and his Icelandic girlfriend, Helga Invarsdottir, now face charges in what police say was an elaborate scam, The Wall Street Journal reported.

The story begins in August 2004, when Davidson brought his malfunctioning computer into Bedi's Mount Kisco, N.Y., store.

Bedi told Davidson that the computer was infected by a suspiciously malevolent virus.

He said he had traced the virus to a hard-drive hidden in Honduras and that his uncle, an Indian army officer, had flown there to retrieve it.

However outlandish, the story appears to have convinced Davidson. He began paying Bedi and Invarsdottir for around-the-clock protection, most of it virtual. The reported price tag for these services was $160,000 US per month.

Another cancer faker pleads guilty

Another Ontario community is asking how someone could fake cancer for personal gain after a young woman pleaded guilty yesterday to defrauding her workplace of thousands of dollars with fictitious tales of terminal illness.

Jessica Ann Leeder pleaded guilty to fraud over $5,000 at a court appearance in Timmins that was intended to be a bail hearing, making her the second young Ontario woman within a week to admit to faking cancer and collecting donations.

The case has made waves in this northern Ontario city. Some people said they couldn't believe a local woman was charged in a cancer scam so soon after Ashley Kirilow of Burlington, Ont., pleaded guilty to a similar, but unrelated, ruse.

Movies could soon watch you

New technology would measure moviegoers' emotions, movements and groupings for market research

A Canadian security surveillance company is part of a project to develop technology to watch moviegoers as they watch a movie.

Using a combination of 2-D and 3-D imaging, the technology would be able to measure emotions, groupings and movement to "revolutionize market research" at movie theatres.

"This tool will feed powerful marketing data (to) film directors, cinema advertisers and cinemas about what audiences enjoy and what adverts capture the most attention," Dr. Abdul Farooq, of the Machine Vision Laboratory at the University of the West of England in Bristol, said in a release from UWE.

"This will do what has been done manually for years in cinemas," Jessica Engler, marketing manager of Aralia, told the Toronto Star. "It's the technology aspect that scares" people.

The lab has partnered with Aralia Systems of West Sussex, England, to build the new software. Aralia in turn is in partnership with Pikaia Systems of Ottawa, which holds several pending infrared illumination patents.

A LESSON IN TRANSCENDING THE PAIN

Just sayin'

PAUL SULLIVAN

Let's see. You just spent 69 days buried under a collapsed mine, so, to unwind, what do you do?

Well, if you're Edison Pena, you run the 42-kilometre New York City Marathon. Or in Edison's case, you hobble along on knees swollen with tendinitis, crossing the finish line in five hours 40 minutes, waving the Chilean flag and limping to one of your favourite Elvis tunes, Wonder Of You.

But I guess if you've spent 69 days buried alive, five hours 40 minutes in hell doesn't seem so bad. At least they have snacks along the way.

You would think Edison would have had enough of running — during the Chilean mining ordeal, he ran approximately 10 kilometres per day, dragging a wooden sled behind him.

But no. Edison was invited to join the VIPs for Sunday's race, the biggest in the U.S., and like any runner, he couldn't resist the urge to go the distance.

But why, Edison, why? Why not just drink in the cheers from the 40,000 plus at the start line, watch the race, then retire to your VIP suite with a brew?

"I wanted to motivate other people to transcend their own pain," he said after the race.

There you go. Whenever you feel al-Qaida has just shot off your kneecaps and left you to wander in the desert, what do you do? You transcend the pain, sport. Doesn't everyone?

"We're inspired to overcome our own pain wherever it resides ... and live another day."

In fact, this manic endurance, this indomitable will, could be what separates us from the other animals in the zoo. We think it's our brain or our capacity for language, yet dolphins, chimpanzees and pigs all seem to share our most human traits.

Except I can't think of a chimpanzee who would run 42 kilometres because he feels like it. Or even if he doesn't, because he wants to "transcend his own pain." Screw the pain, says Bonzo, and pass me a banana.

Fresh out of bananas, Edison Pena refuses to give in. As he wobbles across the finish line, we can't help it: We're inspired to overcome our own pain wherever it resides — in our knees or in our hearts — and live another day.

This makes us better than human. It gives us the strength to be good people: To understand, to forgive, to care about others. It's worth a couple of sore knees.

As for Edison, he's not satisfied running 42 kilometres on swollen knees. Next up, Graceland, and then Viva Elvis, the Cirque du soleil show in Vegas.

Talk about pain.

Murky problem: Report

Worth mentioning

Canada's lakes and rivers are awash in harmful contaminants, but new documents warn the federal government's murky understanding of the problem is putting the country at risk.

Senior bureaucrats reached that conclusion in a pair of internal reports on contaminants and excess nutrients in freshwater. The officials warned Ottawa needs to know much more about the contaminants before it can tell how dangerous they are, what happens when they mix together, or where to focus cleanup efforts.

"There are significant gaps in the understanding of contaminants in groundwater in several areas, which hinder the advancement of effective risk assessment and management activities," says one of the reports.

One report looked at contaminants in freshwater. The other was on excess nutrients, such as phosphorus and nitrogen, that cause toxic algae blooms. Giant floating fields of algae have taken over swaths of the Great Lakes, Lake Winnipeg and many other lakes across the country in recent years. The algae sucks oxygen from the water and produces toxins that are harmful to fish, humans and other living things.

Hollywood's role in the war machine

Expert says images we have of combat and camaraderie come from movies ◐ History shows alliance between film industry and government

STEVE GOW
SCENE@METRONEWS.CA

When you honour the fallen this Remembrance Day, don't be shocked if the images that spring to mind are gung-ho ones of past and present Hollywood war movies.

"A lot of the images that we have of effective combat or camaraderie established during the war ... come from the cinema," said University of Toronto cinema studies director Charlie Keil.

"There was a direct alliance between the film industry and the government."

When the Office of War Information formed in 1942, Hollywood coordinated with the government department in order to keep a struggling film industry afloat by recording and propagating the Second World War.

As such, rallying movies like Bataan (1943) or the Howard Hawks-directed hit Air Force (1943) popularized images of heroic GIs fighting the good fight.

"The war wasn't fought on American soil," explained Keil.

"So it was necessary to really show the Americans what they were fighting for."

Hollywood's role doesn't end there. History is full of anti-war films like All Quiet on the Western Front and Apocalypse Now. But interestingly, these "message" movies were produced during peacetime.

"When it's clear that it's necessary to support the war, there are supporting-the-forces films," said Keil.

"When there's some distance from the war, there tend to be pacifist films."

So which cinematic example best tributes the brave soldier?

Keil suggests that Jean Renoir's The Grand Illusion (1937) perhaps fittingly captures the complexity of memorializing war.

"It doesn't engage in easy 'us-versus-them' dichotomies," said Keil of Renoir's drama about the commonality between prisoners of war and their captors.

"It's more about (our) frailties and, in a way, we decide from our perspective who the enemy is and who the heroes are."

Conan's debut strikes a chord

Exiled Tonight Show host mines his former employers for plenty of laughs in his debut on TBS
Sidekick Richter is back, along with house band Opening show guests included Seth Rogan, Jack White ▶ Conan O'Brien's new talk show debuted on TBS last night.

Conan O'Brien relaunched his TV career on Monday night with a stylishly back-to-basics hour that radiated hard-won lessons from his brief stay hosting The Tonight Show.

With his new TBS show titled simply Conan, O'Brien seemed appealingly stoked yet comfortable in his new home at 11 p.m. ET and on basic cable, originating from a sleek, cozy set with a full moon poised on a seaside backdrop.

If there were very few surprises on the premiere, well, how could there have been after the incessant online hype and all the press attention showered on his much-anticipated return? Besides, O'Brien was back with his longtime sidekick Andy Richter and most of his trusty house band members, now led by Jimmy Vivino (and renamed The Basic Cable Band).

Even O'Brien's post-Tonight Show beard seems familiar by now.

But what's important is, the show lived up to its promises. As promised, it was looser, quirkier, more like Late Night, where O'Brien thrived for nearly 16 years, than the mainstream Tonight Show, where he didn't.

Conan opened with a funny look back at O'Brien's tumultuous year after he refused NBC's bid to move Tonight to 12:05 a.m.

He was mowed down by machine-gun-toting NBC hit men at a security booth, a la Sonny Corleone in The Godfather. He applied for a job in advertising and was turned down by Don Draper (Mad Men star Jon Hamm), who brusquely reminded him, "It's 1965 — and you're two years old." From behind the counter at a Burger King, he reminisced to an impatient customer about his talk-show past.

Likewise, his monologue mined laughs from recent history, which found him leaving Tonight in January after just eight months, with Jay Leno reclaiming the host chair.

O'Brien welcomed viewers to his "second annual first show" and explained why he named the new show Conan: "So I'd be harder to replace."

He acknowledged that "it's not easy doing a late-night show on a channel without a lot of money and that viewers have trouble finding. So that's why I left NBC."

He boasted that his new show is already scoring "in TBS' key demographic: people who can't afford HBO."

And he insisted, "I've dreamed of being a talk-show host on basic cable ever since I was 46." He's now 47.

O'Brien rocked out, singing and playing guitar alongside his musical guest, Jack White.

Before that, his first couch guest was Seth Rogen, who had a lot to say about marijuana and could have used some to calm down.

Then O'Brien greeted Glee star Lea Michele, who made a slightly more engaging appearance.

He asked her about GQ magazine's racy layout of Glee cast members. Then, for Glee fans who were offended by the high-school-themed photos, the ever-self-deprecating O'Brien offered a way to make the steamy photo of Michele seem less hot: Insert a vintage image of him from high school beside her in the shot.

●●½

Don't check out Morning Glory if you're looking for an authentic take on broadcast television. In fact, watching Harrison Ford mumble away as a legendary newsman-turned-talk-show host is as convincing as it is funny — not very.

Lucky for him, Rachel McAdams as the ambitious producer that tries to make a champion morning show out of a chump gives this monotone comedy some sincerity and a charming performance. While Roger Michell has proven skill as a comedic director (Venus, Notting Hill), here he plays it pretty broad. Regardless, by the time the show (figuratively and literally) gets to the laughs, we've mostly tuned out anyhow.

Madden, Richie set to wed: Source

There's talk once again that proud parents Nicole Richie and Joel Madden are finally ready to walk down the aisle — and maybe as early as next month, according to X17. While hanging out recently with pal Christina Aguilera, Richie was gushing about getting hitched, according to a source. "I heard Nicole Richie talking excitedly to Christina Aguilera about her upcoming wedding," the source says.

Aronofsky, Weisz split up

COUPLE. Actress Rachel Weisz and her partner of nine years, director Darren Aronofsky, have called it quits, according to TMZ.

"Rachel Weisz and Darren Aronofsky have been separated for some months. They remain close friends and are committed to raising their son together in New York City," a spokesperson tells the website.

Wild night no biggie: Sheen

PANIC. Charlie Sheen doesn't understand what the big deal is about this recent wild night in New York, when he reportedly trashed a hotel room while an adult film actress locked herself in the bathroom.

"If a guy has one bad night, everybody goes insane and panics," Sheen tells Extra. "I'm not panicking." His cavalier attitude even extends to the $150,000 watch he reportedly lost during the incident.

Victoria as a 'role model'?

CELEBRITY Victoria Beckham is glad she's stayed busy with her fashion work while having children, and sees herself as a role model to her three sons.

"I think it's a very important message to give to children, that both myself and (husband) David (Beckham) work," she says, according to Hollyscoop. "My middle one, Romeo, he absolutely loves fashion."

Award winner

The Gasoline Alley museum at Calgary's Heritage Park Historical Village and the Au Diable Vert outdoor centre near Sutton, Que., are among winners of the 2010 National Awards for Tourism Excellence.

The museum — showcasing a rare collection of antique vehicles, air and gasoline pumps — was named new business of the year. It opened in April 2009 as part of a major expansion of the historical village.

Exploring the Dinosaurs of Drumheller

THE CANADIAN PRESS/BILL GRAVELAND

▶ This specimen in Drumheller bills itself as "the world's largest dinosaur."

They may have been extinct for millions of years but in Drumheller dinosaurs still rule the earth.

Located about 130 kilometres northeast of Calgary, Drumheller has gone from booming coal town in the 1920s to a tourist draw that lures about 400,000 visitors a year to see dinosaur bones and hoodoos (the rock chimneys left by erosion in the bandlands).

Whether it's the Royal Tyrrell Museum of Palaeontology, stunning Horseshoe Canyon, just a few kilometres from the town of about 6,500, or Fred and Barney's Family Restaurant, you are hard pressed in Drumheller to avoid anything dinosaur.

Murals of long dead dinosaurs adorn the sides of many town businesses and there are literally dozens of dinosaur statues, both large and small.

The nearby Badlands are one of the few areas in the world where sedimentary layers from earlier geological periods have been scraped off by natural processes, exposing a rich deposit of animal and plant fossils and even complete dinosaur skeletons.

Some 25 species of dinosaurs have been discovered since 1884 when Joseph Burr Tyrrell, the Museum's namesake, discovered the first Albertosaurus skull.

The Royal Tyrrell, which opened in 1985, is arguably the tourism centrepiece in the region and is celebrating its 25th anniversary this year.

It features ten signature galleries devoted to paleontology, with 40 dinosaur skeletons and more than 130,000 fossil specimens and takes up 11,000 square metres.

The museum opened September 25, 1985 and was given "Royal" status by the Queen in 1990.

"People call us the hub of tourism in the area," said Leanna Mohan, marketing director for the Royal Tyrrell.

"I would think that there are very few places in the world where we haven't had visitors from," she said.

A Photgrapher's Paradise in Hawaii

Hawaii has magical vistas and stunning views you'll want take home with your camera. But for the best shots — especially ones without fellow tourists — it helps to have a little guidance.

The best part of the best-ever family vacation was practically an afterthought.

My dad found Vincent K. Tylor's photo tour accidently while he scoured the web for photos taken on the picturesque island, hoping to sight angles in advance and eventually recreate the shots.

Tylor is a professional photographer who has called Kauai home since moving there in 1997 from suburban Washington, D.C.

He'd been taking friends and photographers to his favourite hidden spots — many of which he found while fishing, hiking or simply exploring with his camera — for years before formally setting up shop.

Today, Kauai Photo Tours is one of two companies offering such excursions on the island. Tylor and his staff take about 1,500 people a year on tours of Kauai, considered by many to be the most visually stunning of Hawaii's islands.

Tours last about five hours with a maximum of seven people in a group. They include up to 15 stops, some of which are so far off the beaten path that the hikes back to the car leave you winded enough to realize it's been a few months since your last trip to the gym. (He wisely fills the back of his SUV with snacks, water, sun block and bug spray, and makes a lunch stop during the tour.)

Tylor's goal is to show visitors awe-inspiring views they'll remember once they've left the island.

"It's exciting to see people's faces light up when we take them to photograph, or just enjoy, for themselves," he said.

Our schedule didn't allow us to go on one of Tylor's traditional tours ($119 plus tax), so we arranged for a private tour ($439 plus tax) that wound up taking about seven hours.

Tylor's assistant picked us up at our hotel in Poipu on the island's south side and we headed up along the east coast of the island.

Along the way, we stopped at waterfalls, walked into taro fields, waded in lagoons, climbed over lava rock, and ended in time to catch a dramatic sunset over Hanalei Bay on the island's north side.

The tour is about more than finding the Kauai that's generally hidden from tourists. It's a chance for Tylor to give shooting tips, suggest a shot, or offer a pointer on the best way to line up an image.

I found my never-forget spots twice that day: with a turquoise vista and with a tangerine sunset.

Want to feel like a speed-savvy race care driver? Orlando has a speedway built just for you to enjoy

GREENWOOD DAVIS
TRAVEL@METRONEWS.CA

All his life, Leonard Johnson dreamed of only one thing: driving a race car. When he celebrated his 80th birthday, he finally got the chance.

Johnson took a 600-horsepower NASCAR-style stock car up to 185 km/h as he followed a trained driver for eight laps around the 1.6-kilometre track at the Richard Petty Driving Experience (RPDE) Speedway.

The experience was a surprise gift from his kids.

"From the time I was old enough to understand what he was saying — all he was saying was 'I want to drive a race car,'" recalls his son Michael Johnson, who travelled with his wife Jo from Ohio to share the experience.

When the longtime racing enthusiast learned he was getting the driving experience as a gift, he reportedly burst into tears. It's not the first time that the staff at RPDE have come across this.

"A few times a year we may get someone who is overcome with joy at the track," says Chris McKee, RPDE marketing director.

"It really is the thrill of a lifetime."

The idea was born in Australia almost 20 years ago by Aussie NASCAR champion Barry Graham, who later teamed up with American NASCAR legend Richard Petty to bring the experience to the U.S.

Today, there are five permanent U.S. locations, including the one in Orlando, and more than 20 other locations that offer Richard Petty Driving Experience programs.

If you want to drive your own car, you must first attend safety training and a course orientation session.

For more information on the Richard Petty Driving Experience visit drivepetty.com.

Prices range from $80 U.S. for a ride-along experience to $370-$2,999 (depending on the number of laps you're up for.

▶ The Richard Petty Driving Experience lets you feed your need for speed.

Bring on the … snow

Colorado ski buffs are still hoping for a dose of the white stuff, but the 'sweet spot' could be further north

Snowboarders make the snowflakes fly in Georgetown, Colo.

Ski resorts say snow trumps the economy when vacationers decide whether or not to head to the mountains.

With economists saying the recession is over, Colorado ski areas now hope a hard-to-predict La Nina weather pattern can bring enough snow to make up for a warm start to October, despite some forecasts predicting otherwise.

La Nina could mean a warmer, drier winter than normal for Colorado but a colder, wetter season for the Pacific Northwest, says Mike Halpert, deputy director of the National Weather Service's Climate Prediction Center.

Though there's still a chance of Colorado having a snowy winter, "the sweet spot will be further north into the Rockies," Halpert says.

"If I was looking to go skiing, I'd be looking further north than Colorado."

Melanie Mills, president and chief executive officer of the trade group Colorado Ski Country USA, is still hopeful for snow across much of the state in the heart of winter when more people want to ski, and not just the early and late season like last winter.

Last season, overall snowfall was 26 per cent below the 10-year average.

"With a better snow year, we think visits will tick up," she says.

Last season, Loveland Ski Area started running its first lift Oct. 7.

This year, the first lift didn't open until Oct. 24, but unlike in past years, even runs that weren't open yet were covered in fresh snow.

The uncertain snow forecast start didn't bother Visanu Tongwarin of Plainfield, Ill., who bought a pass that allows for unlimited skiing at Vail this year.

The 35-year-old golf professional says he hopes to ski a dozen times this winter.

He says he fell in love with the sport while visiting Vail last year.

LAS VEGAS

The lure of the numbers game

Las Vegas: A neon-lit gaming getaway in the middle of the Mojave. We all know there's more to this city than the famed Strip, but its glitzy side will always define it best. For millions of annual visitors, Las Vegas is a party waiting to happen.

No wonder 17 of the 20 biggest hotels in the U.S. are found here. Often towering structures housing their own restaurants, bars and casinos, some of Las Vegas' lodgings have become landmarks in their own right. Establishments like Bellagio, Caesars Palace, Circus Circus, Mandalay Bay, and the MGM Grand draw thousands of tourists, even if those tourists are staying somewhere else. Many of them come to play.

RISK AND REWARD

Gambling's been legal in Nevada since 1931; Las Vegas' first legalized gaming establishment, the Northern Club, opened that same year. Since then, traditional games of cards and dice have been joined by race and sports book betting, made more popular by the fine seating and complimentary food and drink some casinos offer during live events. Poker is drawing more gamers to the tables than ever, while slot machines still reign supreme—drawing the attention of some 70 per cent of casino visitors. If you don't know where to begin, many Vegas casinos offer complimentary gaming lessons.

STAR POWER

Whether you're the gambling type or not, you can bet Vegas has a show you'll want to see. The city's famous for spectacular Cirque du Soleil productions and Broadway hits like Jersey Boys. And it has long been a second home for the planet's most popular live entertainers, from Liberace, Elvis Presley and the Rat Pack to the stars of today: comedians like Louie Anderson, Drew Carey and Jerry Seinfeld, and music superstars like Celine Dion, U2, Andrea Bocelli, Barbra Streisand, Madonna, and the returning Garth Brooks.

In fact, Vegas was built on this fusion of celebrity glamour, notoriety and hard cash. The infamous Benjamin 'Bugsy' Siegel opened his Flamingo Hotel here in 1946, naming the establishment in honour of his girlfriend Virginia Hill's long legs. Howard Hughes—an eccentric tycoon if there ever was one—moved to Las Vegas' Desert Inn for an extended stay in 1966. When the Inn asked him to leave, he bought it instead.

THE WINNINGS

Whether you're the gambling type or not, you can bet Vegas has a show you'll want to see. The city's famous for spectacular Cirque du Soleil productions and Broadway hits like Jersey Boys. And it has long been a second home for the planet's most popular

With so much on the table, it's no wonder Las Vegas can boast annual numbers like these:

★ Over 36 million visitors, staying an average of 3.6 nights, spending an average of US$482 on gambling alone.

★ More than 19,000 conventions, drawing more than 4 million delegates to almost 150,000 hotel and motel rooms.

★ An annual gaming revenue of $5.6 billion from the Strip alone.

Sounds like these millions of people are on to something, doesn't it? Having fun in the desert sun; striking it rich at hot table the very same night—that's a great deal, any way you cut it.

Sunday dinner is sinfully delicious with beef tenderloin dish

Preparation:

1. Let beef sit at room temperature for 1 hour prior to cooking.

2. Rub roast with oil, salt and pepper. Sear tenderloin on all sides just to brown, about 1 minute per side.

3. Arrange on a rack over a rimmed baking sheet or roasting pan. Transfer to a 160 C oven and roast until meat thermometer registers 63 C for medium-rare, 30 to 40 minutes. Transfer to a cutting board to rest for 15 minutes while making the sauce. .

4. In a skillet, melt butter over medium-high heat. Cook shallots until tender and golden, about 8 minutes. Stir in mustard and horseradish, salt and pepper.

Ingredients :

- 1.5 kg beef tenderloin, trimmed and tied
- 15 ml (1 tbsp) olive oil
- 5 ml each coarse salt and fresh cracked pepper Horseradish Sauce
- 15 ml (1 tbsp) butter
- 125 ml minced shallots
- 15 ml grainy mustard
- 15 ml hot horseradish
- 1 ml each salt and fresh cracked pepper
- 125 ml beef broth
- 250 ml heavy cream
- 15 ml chopped chives

5. Whisk in beef broth and any juices from roast and cook until reduced by half, about 3 minutes. Stir in cream and bring to a boil; cook until it starts to thicken, about 5 minutes. Whisk in chives and serve immediately with sliced beef and preferred sides.

Stretching the truth

One third of people know someone who lied on a resume: Poll Fibbing could jeopardize future jobs

RAF BRUSILOW
LIFE@METRONEWS.CA

Little white lies have no place on your resume, although a new poll shows some people are no strangers to stretching the truth.

A recent ADP BackCheck poll has found that one-in-three people report knowing someone who has lied on their resume and three-out-of-five people polled have gotten a job without having their references checked.

The poll results suggest resume fibbing is certainly not as rare an occurrence as employers might hope suggesting more employers need to be vigilant about confirming details of a potential hire's background or else suffer the potential consequences.

"Be truthful about what you've done and emphasize your skills to highlight what you can do for an organization. You want to put your best foot forward." MARK KOHLER

"Employers think pre-employment screening takes a lot of time but it doesn't have to. The cost of a bad hire in Canada is generally one-to-three times their annual salary, so it can be really costly to an employer," said Mark Kohler, a director at ADP Canada.

In the poll, lying about previous pay or compensation led the way with 27 per cent of people saying they thought it was OK to do on a resume. Nineteen per cent of people said they felt it was OK to lie about previous responsibilities at former jobs while 17 per cent of respondents felt it was acceptable to lie about specific skills they may not actually have. Twelve per cent of people polled even suggested lying about education or credentials was fine as well.

"People want to put themselves in a better light and many believe that stretching the truth won't do any harm — but it often will," Kohler said.

Besides getting fired or demoted once you're discovered, your fibbing could make it harder to get a job in the same industry if your previous employer spreads the word about you to other employers.

If you're even slightly tempted to lie or misrepresent details on your resume, don't — instead, focus on highlighting the value of the skills you do have and why they make you a great hire. Doing so will not only prevent awkward workplace situations but also lead to a far more positive attitude and sense of confidence in yourself.

"My advice would be to take an inventory of your skills and accomplishments," Kohler said.

▶ According to a recent poll, 27 per cent of people think it's OK to lie about previous pay or compensation.

RESUME QUICK TIPS

What not to do

Things to avoid when crafting your resume:

1) Don't exaggerate your abilities in a language. If you can't write a page-long document in Spanish, you are not "fluent" in Spanish — on the other hand if you can generally hold an effective conversation with a Spanish-speaker you likely have "conversational" abilities in Spanish. Make sure you state your appropriate level of ability.

2) Don't stretch dates for jobs you had or lie about what positions you held — a simple call to a previous employer will expose you instantly and no matter how inconsequential the details, you'll look untrustworthy.

3) Don't lie about skills and credentials. You will eventually get found out and in some jobs not having a vital skill can even be dangerous.

4) Fight the urge to over-state your previous salary. Serious employers could ask you to back up your claims with pay stubs or tax returns and you'll look foolish when the numbers don't match.

LOOSE LIPS CAN SINK AN EMPLOYER'S CASE

As a recent case illustrates, advice often given in the schoolyard also applies in the workplace.

In 1988, Jackie Dawydiuk commenced employment as a clerk with the Insurance Corporation of British Columbia. She was a model employee. With her strong work ethic, she worked her way up the corporate ladder.

In 2003, Dawydiuk left work weeks before she was scheduled to start a new senior management position. During her absence, her supervisor of only one month, Richard Rees, advised her that her new position had been eliminated and that, instead, ICBC was offering her a position as regional manager. Dawydiuk did not respond to Rees' offer in a timely manner and was fired. She later sued ICBC for wrongful dismissal.

During the course of the lawsuit, a human resources report prepared by Rees describing the circumstances of Dawydiuk's termination surfaced. The report, which was circulated to members of ICBC's HR team, Dawydiuk's superiors and another ICBC employee, indicated that her performance was inadequate, that she was not re-hireable, and that her rating was unsatisfactory. The report quickly became the focus of Dawydiuk's lawsuit.

At trial, the court found Rees' report "misleading" and stated that it reflected "a lack of decency and fairness on ICBC's part towards its former employee." ICBC argued that even if Rees was careless in forming his belief about Dawydiuk, it reflected his honest belief and he had duty to communicate it to the recipients. The court agreed with ICBC. However, it found that Rees was offside for having circulated the report to the other ICBC employee. Consequently, ICBC was held responsible for the damage to Dawydiuk's reputation.

Courts are becoming increasingly sensitive to claims for defamation based on statements that lead to a loss of reputation at work. Since both employees and employers can be held responsible for their loose lips, they should carefully consider making statements, written or oral, that can be viewed as untrue or misleading. Without a legal, social or moral requirement to make or publish personal comments, sometimes it's just safest to refrain.

New book details lost college years

Richard Rushfield, former entertainment editor of LATimes.com and Gawker, has authored a tell-all memoir of his education at Hampshire College, Don't Follow Me, I'm Lost.

Founded in 1970 as an alternative university, Hampshire had — according to Rushfield — fallen off the deep end by the time he arrived.

How have you dealt with the backlash?

It wasn't unexpected. This book is a portrayal of a specific time that wasn't their finest hour. Certainly, the spectre of students not going to class for an entire year isn't something they would put on their promotional literature.

Why were the standards so different in the '80s?

It was an affluent era in America. I don't think today's students could go through four years of any college without having any sense of what they're going to do when they graduate.

But you're an ambitious writer now. Did this experience help you find that?

I spent most of (my 20s) drifting around in jobs with no real plan. I bottomed out on that, and somehow writing presented itself. Now I've thrown myself into that with the energy I once threw into sitting on the couch for a week straight.

Sports in brief

Tiger Woods faces his first full year without winning as a pro, but he has no doubt that his game is pointed in the right direction.

Woods is defending his title at the Australian Masters, which has moved this year to Victoria Golf Club. He won for the 82nd time in his career a year ago at Kingston Heath, and that was his last victory anywhere in the world. Just over a week later, revelations began to unfold about his extramarital affairs, which rocked his personal life and shattered his image.

Woods is not looking at his return Down Under as a chance to come full circle. He just wants to win.

Moss's goal helps Flames halt skid

Calgary forward scores game-winner late in third period

CALGARY	COLORADO

438 Flames defenceman Jay Bouwmeester has the longest active consecutive games played streak (438) in the NHL

Curtis Glencross scored twice, Miikka Kiprusoff had 29 saves and the Calgary Flames beat the Colorado Avalanche 4-2 last night to end a four-game losing streak.

David Moss and Mikael Backlund also scored and Rene Bourque had two assists for the Flames.

Brandon Yip and Chris Stewart scored for Colorado and Peter Budaj stopped 21 shots.

With time running out in regulation, the Flames turned up the pressure in Colorado's end and finally got the deciding tally. Budaj made the initial save on Niklas Hagman's close-in shot, but the puck squirted over to Moss, who knocked it in to make it 3-2 with 4:15 left.

Glencross made it 4-2 with an empty-net goal with 33 seconds remaining, his fifth of the year.

The game was tied one-all when the Avalanche went on a 5-on-3 power play 20 seconds into the third period. Colorado kept the puck in the Calgary zone and cashed in when Stewart picked up Milan Hejduk's rebound and calmly lifted it over a sprawled Kiprusoff to make it 2-1 with his 10th goal of the season.

Moments after Niklas Hagman was stopped on a chance, Backlund tied it on his third goal of the season with a shot from the left circle with 9:03 left in the third.

TIME TO LET GO OF IGINLA?

If the Calgary Flames' season heads south in the next few months — or even treads water around the .500 level — then the franchise has little option other than to send captain Jarome Iginla south.

The fans may not appreciate that scenario and the managerial Sutter team would never acknowledge it is considering trading Iginla publicly, but that would be the only sound course of action if this becomes an old, floundering lineup in need of a facelift.

But if this does start to unfold over the next 40 games or so, it would be foolhardy for the team to hang on to its best — and most diminishing — asset on the off-chance it can make a push for a playoff spot. I'd like to see one thing happen before it ever gets to that point in January. And it involves a fair amount of risk.

If the Flames can't put together a decent run during their lengthy stretch of mostly road games, coach Brent Sutter should be dismissed in favour of a coach who's more willing to play a free-wheeling, puck-moving style. Clearly the players are still resisting buying into Sutter's defence-oriented scheme for more than a couple of periods at a time. He's had almost 100 regular season games to stir the Kool-Aid and still his best players are not interested in drinking it.

What, you say, let the inmates run the asylum? Well, if it means salvaging the season and squeezing the best out of Iginla over his last few seasons of top-notch hockey, then why not? Sutter's kitty-bar-the-door style is admirable and I would have really loved to see it work, but it just doesn't generate enough offence in today's game. I know there are theorists out there who believe that defence is the only way to win in the playoffs, but I think that's changing. Pittsburgh and Chicago broke from tradition the past couple of years and this year teams such as Washington, Tampa Bay and Los Angeles have open-minded approaches.

Calgary doesn't have the horses that most of the top-scoring teams in the league do, but it does have some players who have shown they can generate offence if and when the defence-shackles are taken off. Besides Iginla, players such as Olli Jokinen, Alex Tanguay, Brendan Morrison, Niklas Hagman, and even Ales Kotalik, David Moss, Jay Bouwmeester, Ian White and Matt Stajan have scored at much higher paces at other times in their careers. Let them freestyle for a while, guys. Let's see what happens.

The Flames have one of the highest-paid blue-lines in the league and a top-flight goalie in Miikka Kiprusoff. An offensive system will ensure they'll be earning their money in the defensive end. I think they're up to that challenge.

Would this work? Maybe not against the best teams in the league, but for sure this would be a more exciting system to watch against middle-of-the-pack teams. And I think the players and fans would much rather be part of 5-4 victories over the Minnesotas and Phoenixes and Colorados than grind-it-out 2-1 losses.

Is it an Acura? A new-style Buick? The new Kia Optima joins the ranks of some of the most stylish vehicles on the road — and makes a strong technical showing

▶ The 2.0T is the sporty one of the bunch with 274 horsepower.

Dare to be different

Prepare to be startled. And prepare to forget about the previous-generation Kia Magentis that was about as anonymous as a sedan could be.

As with the recently released Sorento and Sportage wagons, plus 2010's Forte Koup coupe and boxy Soul, the new Optima (the Magentis adopts the U.S. name) is a visual shot to the solar plexus, but not in any outrageous way. Kia has simply elevated the styling to a new artistic high from which the competition could learn a thing or three.

Kia uses the latest Hyundai Sonata platform (Kia is part of the Hyundai family) as its starting point and then adds its own special sheetmetal to make the Optima just about the sleekest sedan on the road.

The spacious interior is equally stylish.

The spit and polish extends to the passenger compartment with an attractive display panel that's angled toward the driver, but not so much as to deprive anyone seated in the shotgun position from access to the communications and audio controls.

The Optima's larger interior — in part created by a 7.5-centimetre gain in distance between the front and rear wheels — helps provide greater rear-seat space. Wider doors also make for easier back-seat entry and exit.

Also increased are the outputs of the base and optional powerplants, which mirror those of the Sonata. The starting point is a 2.4-litre four-cylinder that provides 200 horsepower and 186 pound-feet of torque. That's a gain of 25 horsepower and 17 pound-feet over the outgoing engine of equal displacement.

Later in the model year, you'll be able to order your Optima with a fuel-saving gasoline-electric hybrid system that matches a 2.4-litre four-cylinder with a 30-kilowatt electric motor to make 209 net horsepower.

Options include a panoramic sunroof, navigation system with backup camera plus heated and cooled front seats.

The Optima arrives later this year with an estimated $22,000 base price, although a low price point is no longer the predominant reason to look at this Korean brand. Quite the opposite. Love the style and be surprised at how little it will cost you to get behind the wheel.

New contender

What you should know about the 2011 Kia Optima:

- Type: Four-door, mid-size, front-wheel-drive sedan.
- Engines (hp): 2.4-litre DOHC I4 (200); 2.0-litre DOHC I4, turbocharged (274).
- Transmissions: Six-speed manual; six-speed automatic.
- Market Position: Kia, along with parent Hyundai, is shaking up the mid-size sedan market with styling that is both daring and dashing. Older buyers might not warm to the look, but younger family members are going to love it.
- Safety: Front airbags; side-impact airbags; side-curtain airbags; anti-lock brakes; traction control; stability control.
- Stats: L/100 km (city/hwy), 9.4/5.7 (2.4, AT, est.); Base price (incl. destination) $22,000 (est.)

5 drive

By comparison

Ford Fusion
Base price: $21,350
Gas- or hybrid-powered, this mid-size Ford has caught on in a big way.

Honda Accord
Base price: $26,350
Popular and roomy sedan comes in I4, V6 strengths. Excellent resale.

Toyota Camry
Base price: $26,800
For Kia, this top-dog sedan is the one to beat. Available as a hybrid, too.

Fusion a solid bet

- First-generation Fusion delivered ahead-of-time style and handling
- Driveline is relatively worry-free, but maintenance key to longevity

▶ The second-generation Fusion is now on sale.

SECOND GEAR

JUSTIN PRITCHARD
DRIVE@METRONEWS.CA

Shopping out a used Fusion? Look for four or six-cylinder power and either automatic or manual transmissions. Base models got a smooth, 2.3-litre four-banger with a five-speed stick or five-speed automatic handling its 160 horsepower. An available 3-litre V6 mustered 221 horsepower and got a six-speed automatic. All Wheel Drive (AWD) was available, though most models in the used market were front-wheel drive.

The specs

- MODEL 2006 to 2009 Ford Fusion
- VEHICLE TYPE Sedan
- APPROXIMATE USED PRICE RANGE $9,000 to $23,000

What owners like

Interior and exterior styling, performance and handling were all highly rated by Fusion's owners. Ease of entry and exit, premium interior trim and generous storage levels were also highly rated.

What owners hate

On four-cylinder, manual-equipped models, performance is said to be "adequate" at best. Other complaints of the Fusion are pleasantly limited. Owners and reviewers tend to agree that the Fusion seems a solid, well-sorted machine.

Common issues

On a test-drive, ensure all locks and door handles work as expected, both from inside and outside of the vehicle. Inspect the area around the sunroof (if equipped) for signs of rust or moisture damage, and ensure all in-cabin electronics work as expected.

Listen to the vehicle's front-end for signs of clunking or clacking sounds, which could indicate a suspension problem. On a road test, expect a solid, comfortable ride that's a little on the stiff side, but be wary of unusual noises. Some Fusion owners complain that the ride can quickly degrade due to premature wear of bushings, sway-bar links or struts.

The verdict

For shoppers after a sporty and unique sedan that doesn't blend into the endless sea of Camrys and Accords, a well-priced and well-maintained Ford Fusion is worth a look.

Today's horoscope

For today's crossword answers and for expanded horoscopes, go to metronews.ca

♈ Aries March 21-April 20 Most likely you haven't done anything you would be arrested for but because some people don't agree with your aims you may try to hide what you've been up to. Don't. You've done nothing wrong.

♉ Taurus April 21-May 21 If you allow yourself to fall for someone's charms today you could be inviting a whole lot of trouble into your life.

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21 If what others expect of you is different to what you expect of yourself don't change your ways just to stay in their good books. The planets urge you to be a bit more selfish than usual.

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 You will be at your very best today: both at home and at work you will dazzle with your wit and your wisdom.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug.23 Someone is scheming to make life difficult for you, so be on your guard today and be wary of situations where you are likely to be out of your depth.

♍ Virgo Aug. 24- Sept. 22 It may annoy you that a friend or a family member seems incapable of seeing your side of the story but getting hot under the collar about it won't change a thing.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 What happens over the next 24 hours may be unsettling but it's not the end of the world – not nearly – so don't panic.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 Take care not to read too much into what happens today, especially where affairs of the heart are concerned, The signals you are getting are liable to be twisted to such an extent that you get the wrong end of the stick entirely.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 Are you being allowed to express yourself in the way that you would like? If not, make an extra special effort today to put forward your opinions.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20 It may seem as if someone is trying to deceive you – all the signs are there – but can you be sure? Chances are you have allowed your mind to interpret those signs in completely the wrong way.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18 Authority figures of one stripe or another have been very helpful of late but don't push your luck and demand too much of them.

♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20 Your belief in yourself has taken a bit of a dive and the best way to deal with your waning self-confidence is to set yourself a challenge that demands the very best of you.
